Introduction

1. GCSE subject criteria set out the knowledge, understanding, skills and assessment objectives common to all GCSE specifications in law. They provide the framework within which an awarding body creates the detail of the specification.
2. Specifications must also meet the regulators' general requirements, including the common and GCSE criteria as defined in The statutory regulation of external qualifications (QCA/04/1293).
3. Subject criteria are intended to:
 - help ensure consistent and comparable standards in the same subject across the awarding bodies
 - ensure that the rigour of GCSE is maintained
 - ensure that specifications build on the knowledge, understanding and skills established by the national curricula for England, Northern Ireland and Wales, and facilitate progression to further study
 - help higher education institutions, employers and other stakeholders such as learners and parents/guardians know what has been studied and assessed.
4. Any GCSE specification that contains significant elements of law must be consistent with the relevant parts of these subject criteria.

Aims and learning outcomes

5. GCSE specifications in law should encourage learners to be inspired, moved and changed by following a broad, coherent, satisfying and worthwhile course of study and explore ways in which legal, cultural, historical, moral, political, religious and social factors interact to shape the world in which we live today. They should prepare learners to make informed decisions about further learning opportunities and career choices.
6. GCSE specifications in law must enable learners to:
 - actively engage in the study of law to develop as effective and independent learners, and as critical and reflective thinkers with enquiring minds
 - develop an understanding of the role of law in underpinning relationships among individuals, groups and institutions within society

- develop enquiry, critical thinking and decision-making skills through investigation of legal issues that are important, real and relevant to the world in which they live, and base reasoned judgements and arguments on evidence
- know the rights and responsibilities they have as individuals, appreciate their own contribution to society and develop skills that enhance their ability to act in informed roles within different contexts.

Subject content

7. The content of GCSE specifications in law must reflect the learning outcomes.
8. GCSE specifications in law must allow learners to develop the knowledge, skills and understanding specified below.
9. GCSE specifications in law must require learners to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:
 - legal structures, including the institutions of the legal system, law enforcement arrangements, the main classifications of law and the social structures that the law supports
 - legal processes, including the nature of law making, dispute resolution (with reference to at least one area of substantive law), the application and interpretation of law, and the provision of legal services
 - legal issues, including the balance between the rights and obligations of individuals and groups, consistency in law enforcement and the connections between legal and social developments.
10. GCSE specifications in law must require learners to apply critical understanding and demonstrate that they can:
 - acquire information for different purposes from a range of sources
 - interpret and evaluate information, considering its validity
 - use information to examine issues, demonstrate problem-solving skills and construct and evaluate arguments and conclusions.

Assessment objectives
